The Organic Research Centre, Elm Farm, is one of Britain's leading research, development and advisory organisations for organic agriculture. Founded in 1980 as an educational charity, it undertakes research and demonstration projects on organic farms throughout the country and works to influence organic food and farming policy in the UK and EU.

www.organicinform.org

Organic Inform is a part Defra-funded project aimed at providing independent and reliable research to organic farmers and producers. Relevant and current information on industry developments, new contracts, prices, quality, trade information and contacts as well as supply and demand information is provided.

The service acts as an independent umbrella, collating and disseminating information and expertise in a user-friendly format which is both affordable and accessible.
